Dear Cousins at the Old Homestead –

Yours of yesterday here this morning – I am so glad you are all going about and seeing the old places once more -- and hope you will all plan to stop over more than one day, at 17 Madison St. You see, two of the women can have the front chamber, and the one who cares most to sleep alone, the back bedroom, and Albert can have Susan B's study with the good spring couch, which lets down into a tiptop sleeping place. So do not hesitate, but all come, for you may never be this way together ever again.

Just send letter or postal the day before you start, & we will have a re-union all by ourselves – Katie must see, & get all the information she can from D.M. Anthony.

But if you decide to come separately, all right, but do not think of rushing for Chicago until you have made a good visit here.

With love to all the cousins,
Mary S. & Susan B.
